

Anotações do Escarnos

◆ Dia 01 ◆

Viagem paga por outros, não foi do meu bolso o ouro. Eu e mais quatro dentro de um barco de porte médio — mesmo assim, todo mundo ficou virando o pescoço pra olhar pra gente.

Talvez eu devesse ter tomado um banho antes de subir a bordo. O cheiro da Floresta não é pra qualquer nariz de vila.

Isso aqui estava dentro de um vaso, lá no barco. Espero que não seja sinal de que a comida vai acabar.

Preciso descobrir como se planta essa coisa. Talvez seja igual às outras bagas que eu conheço.

◆ Dia 13 ◆

Nunca fiquei tanto tempo longe de terra firme, mesmo que voar tenha sido bom o bastante pra repetir outra vez. Eles nos deixaram hospedados numa espécie de pousada — o que os letrados daqui chamam de hotel (palavra nova, gostei do jeito que ela soa) — e só vieram nos buscar de tarde.

Conheci uma mulher daqui também. Parece ser esperta — se a escolheram pra essa missão, com certeza é. O nome dela é Helena.

◆ Dia 14 ◆

◆ Dia 15 ◆

Estamos trabalhando com uma espécie de sugadores de sangue (?). São humanoides demais pro meu gosto — se soubessem esconder as ~~presa~~ presas, se camuflariam melhor entre os homens.

Descobri numa taverna uma história... Parece que existe uma lenda que bate certo com a aparência deles.

“Captores de criança! Minha mãe contava que se eu não voltasse pra casa antes do anoitecer, eles iriam me pegar — ou que ela ia me jogar pra fora de casa à noite, pras estriges me devorarem. Mas é aquela coisa que os pais fazem pra pôr os filhos na linha, né?”

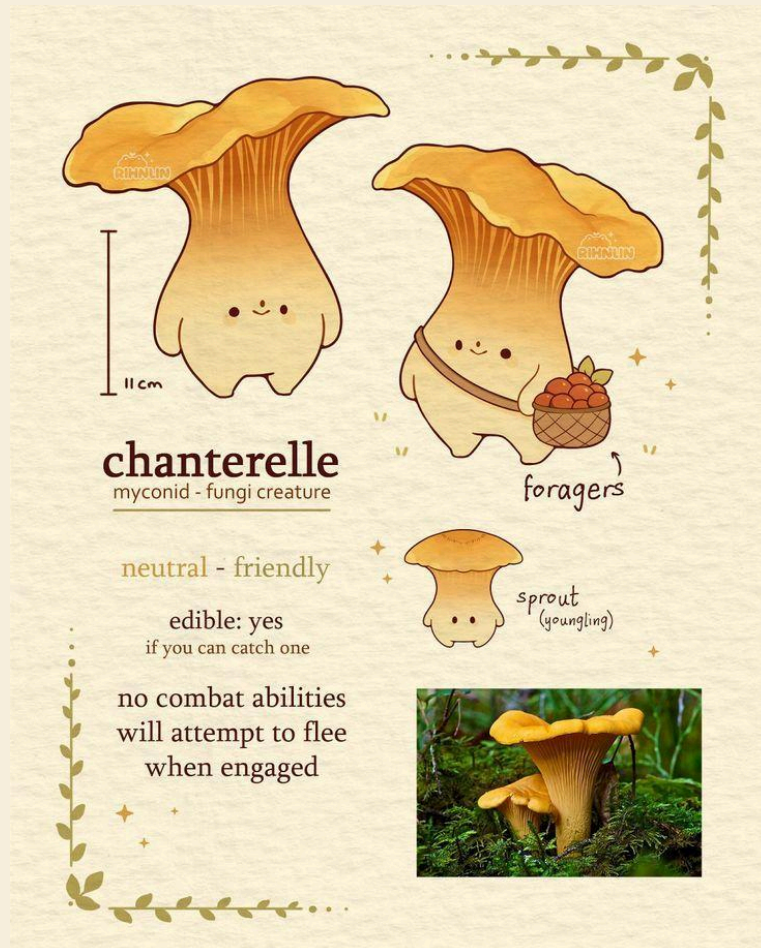

“Eu sempre acreditei, por mais que a Coroa em Brasas — a Rainha Ignês — seja uma boa governante, nunca vi mendigos pelas ruas desde criança. Então pensava que os estriges os levassem.”

“Uma vez eu vi um. Era alto, pele beijada pela lua, cabelos loiros como as estrelas e os olhos? Tão frios quanto os ventos de Skadi.”

◆ Dia 18 ◆

Helena parece estar se dando bem com o pessoal da organização. Já eu, infelizmente, sátiro não vive em bando, e estou bem longe de casa.

Falaram pra eu tomar cuidado com os cogumelos, mas só achei esse aqui.

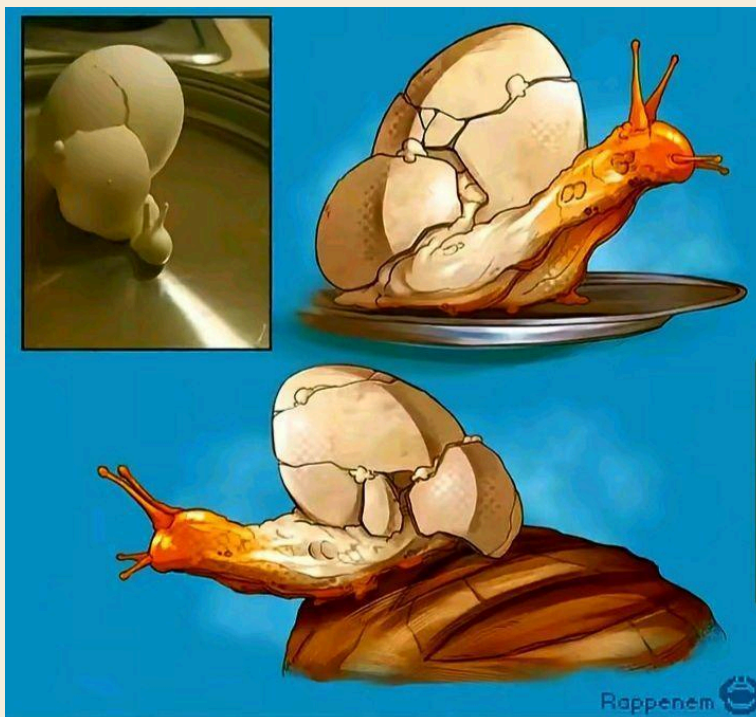

Estavam falando dessas variantes. Achei todas durante a madrugada.

♦ Dia 19 ♦

Eu e Helena encontramos um ninho, tinha três ovos. Um vazio, outro intacto e o terceiro era um ovo falso. Decidimos pegar o ovo solitário.

◆ Dia 24 ◆

Conhecemos uma vila de Grungs. No momento, eles estavam caçando um hipocampo de água doce.

Fui mordido por uma Víbora Florida — uma da variedade orquídea, se não me engano — e o curandeiro deles me deu dois frascos dessa erva decocção (foi assim que ele chamou, mas pra mim é só um chazinho grosso). Ele deu o nome de Bagas Do Viver.

ORCHID VIPER

At first glance, an orchid viper merely appears to be a beautiful, large orchid flower. This innocuous disguise is an orchid viper's greatest asset, allowing it to get the drop on even otherwise perceptive prey. Upon striking, the viper injects its prey with an insidious toxin, both eating away at them and effecting their mind and perceptions. The venom of an orchid viper causes its victims to become infatuated with flowers, impulsively seeking out any flowers in their vicinity. Exploiting this effect, orchid vipers congregate in large numbers, forming what appears to be a veritable bloom of colorful orchid flowers. When a target is bit by one viper, they are drawn to the rest of the orchid vipers, who quickly overwhelm and kill their unfortunate victim. This strategy allows orchid vipers to predate on creatures much larger than themselves, including humanoids, a behavior that has led many communities within their home ranges to fear large flowers of any description, slashing and burning them on sight lest they reveal themselves to be deadly predators.

Orchid Venom (Liquor) This special poison is harvested from the glands of an orchid viper, or brewed from one's petals. A creature subjected to this poison must make a DC 13 Constitution saving throw. On a failed save, the creature takes 10 (3d6) poison damage and must succeed on a DC 13 Wisdom saving throw or become charmed by flowers for 1 minute. While charmed in this way, the appearance and smell of flowers becomes exaggerated for the creature, and they seek to be around as many flowers as possible.

Damage Resistances Cold, Fire
Condition Immunities Blinded, Deafened,

Senses Blindsight 30 ft. (blind beyond this radius),
Passive Perception 10
Challenge 3 (700 XP)

False Appearance. While the assassin vine remains motionless, it is indistinguishable from a normal plant.

Entangling Vines. Nonmagical plants within 15 ft. of the assassin vine animate under its will, causing the area to be difficult terrain. A creature that moves 10 or more feet through this area on a turn must succeed on a DC 14 Dexterity saving throw or fall prone.

Actions

Vine Lash. Melee Weapon Attack: +6 to hit, reach 10 ft., one target. Hit: 11 (2d6 + 4) bludgeoning damage and the target is grappled (escape DC 14).

Constrict. One creature grappled by the assassin vine must succeed on a DC 14 Constitution saving throw or take 28 (8d6) bludgeoning damage or half as much on a success.

Reactions

Crush. As a reaction to a creature grappled by the assassin vine speaking or casting a spell with a verbal component, the assassin vine crushes the air out of its lungs. The creature immediately begins to suffocate.

Toxic Sap. As a reaction to taking piercing or slashing damage, the vine deals 9 (2d8) poison damage to each creature grappled by it.

ASSASSIN VINE LORE

Nature DC 10: The sap of the assassin vine is highly irritating to the skin and lungs, and can be lethally toxic in high enough quantities. When encountering an assassin vine, one must take care to stay a considerable distance away if attempting to cut or pierce it.

Nature DC 15: Assassin vines are remarkably tenacious plants, able to survive equally in burning desert heat or arctic tundra. Some have even been known to take root in the underdark, supplanting their normal photosynthesis with increased supplementary feeding.

ASSASSIN VINE TACTICS

Assassin vines lie in wait until they sense motion within their reach then snap out to grab it. They don't release prey willingly once they have it grappled, and don't retreat when injured.

As the assassin vine has limited ability to sense, plan, or move, its ideal prey is one that is fleeing through the brush from something else and cannot take the time to spot and go around it, or one that happens to set down for a rest near it.

◆ Dia 30 ◆

Capturamos o primeiro estrige. Parte da equipe vai voltar e a outra vai seguir em frente. Vão atrás do rastro de onde ele veio, tentando achar o ninho — eu vou ter que voltar pra estudar o que pegamos.

Espero que Helena me conte o que achou, quando ela voltar pra base.

THANXOLOTL

"Perhaps the smallest dragon I have ever tracked down. Perhaps even the trickiest, these little buggers are not to be underestimated due to their size and appearance. I've never seen a warrior break his own arm hitting a troll with a greathammer."
- Sir Hunter Von Huntington III, Hunter, Explorer, Inventor, Gnome.

Thanxolotls possess a caudal fin extending from behind the head to the vent. Their heads are wide, and their eyes are lidless. Their limbs are underdeveloped and possess long, thin digits. Three pairs of external stalks originate behind their heads. Thanxolotls have barely visible vestigial teeth.

Amphibious. The thanxolotl can breathe air and water.

Magic Resistance. The thanxolotl has advantage on saving throws against spells and other magical effects.

Reactive Scales. Any damage dealt to the thanxolotl with a melee attack is also dealt to the attacker.

Actions

Multiattack. The thanxolotl makes two attacks.

Tail Slap. Melee Weapon Attack: +7 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 18 (4d6 + 4) bludgeoning damage.

Reactions

Spell Reflection. If the thanxolotl makes a successful saving throw against a spell, or a spell attack misses it, the thanxolotl can choose another creature (including the spellcaster) it can see within 30 feet of it. The spell targets the chosen creature instead of the thanxolotl. If the spell forced a saving throw, the chosen creature makes its own save. If the spell was an attack, the attack roll is rolled against the chosen creature.

Special Scales. The scales of a thanxolotl are unique in that they absorb, store and release all types of energy. Much like the way a reptile lies in the sun to store heat, the thanxolotl can absorb kinetic energy when attacked, instantly unleashing it back upon its attacker.

Magical energy becomes unstable and unpredictable when it comes into contact with the thanxolotl's scales, often rebounding or dissipating entirely. Due to the thanxolotl's extraordinary defensive capabilities, it is often hunted for its hide to craft thanxolotl dragon scale leather.

Diminutive Dragons. The thanxolotl lacks most of the traditional draconic features, but its innate magical nature and dragon scales reveal its true origins. Thanxolotl have shed their draconic wings in favour of external head stalks and fly using magic to propel themselves.

Thanxolotl are hunted for their blood by spellcasters who require draconic blood but would prefer to avoid gigantic dragons. Due to the hunting of thanxolotls they are steadily becoming rarer and rarer, and famed huntmasters such as Sir Hunter Von Huntington III are calling for their protection.

POTRIFFON

"The potriffon is far from a noble beast, the runt of the griffon litter. They are mostly domestic pets and spellcasting familiars."

Keen Smell. The potriffon has advantage on Wisdom (Perception) checks that rely on smell.

Actions

Beak. Melee Weapon Attack: +4 to hit, reach 5 ft., one target. Hit: 4 (1d4 + 2) piercing damage.

Cute Kitty. Potriffons are kept by spellcasters as an alternative to a feline familiar and by rich breeders. Whilst they appear as cuddly cute kittens, the potriffon has a loud squawk to go along with its soft purr.

Griffons are noted for their feline agility mixed with avian grace, but the potriffon is a naturally clumsy exception. Whilst still quick and dexterous, the potriffon's disproportionate body hinders its movements slightly.
